

Hi everyone,

I wanted to provide a few quick updates.

1. It seems there was an issue with ALEKS not allowing you all to access the homework for sections 2.1 - 2.6. With the help of Ashlan, it seems that issue is now resolved. In order to get ALEKS working again, you might see that the homework for sections 2.1 and 2.2 has already passed. I had to set the due date for both of those sections to a few days ago. To make sure that you all could continue working on those two sections, I went into each of your accounts and extended the homework, so even though the due date might say that it's passed, you should still be able to access it until next Wednesday. If anyone has any issues accessing the homework for sections 2.1 - 2.6, please let me know.

2. In my previous email, I mentioned that I thought the computer labs on campus were going to remain open. I was mistaken - the computer labs are closed, along with most other offices on campus. I'm not sure exactly what the messaging has been to students, but employees have been told we are not to come to campus under any circumstance.

3. I suspect most of you get Canvas notifications in your CSN email, but I'm not certain that's true for everyone. I will continue posting announcements on the course website, but I am also planning to send information through Canvas and your CSN email. I don't want to flood your inboxes with duplicate messages, so if anyone would prefer I send them messages through Canvas and not their CSN email or their CSN email and not Canvas, please let me know.

I hope everyone has a great weekend!

Dr. Doug
